THURSDAY, MAY 26.

AFRAID OF THE POPE.

We like to read the Maritime Baptist for the same reason that an acquaintance of ours once gave for liking to walk on the street behind a group of young school girls...

We hasten to assure our friend the Baptist that "P-pe," mentioned above, was not one of the Popes whose unfathomable craftiness is to be such a danger in the future...

We have no desire to indulge in levity, upon a serious subject; but we wish to do justice to the mixture of simplicity, prejudice, and folly which inspires the fanatical utterances of the Maritime Baptist and papers of that class.

"The proper study of mankind is man,"—Pope. The Maritime Baptist, coming upon these words, for the first time, would probably conclude that they were a covert order to some of the Pope's emissaries to seize the Isle of Man...

The fears that inspire "determined opposition" to the abolition or alteration of the accession oath, have no better or more serious foundation. Indeed, many of the things asserted in Protestant papers about the Church and the Popes are not even the distortion of something real...

This yarn was manufactured, wholly; and was given circulation in Nova Scotia by a Halifax daily paper; and the Maritime Baptist has preserved it to this day, and now reissues it. The slightest inquiry would have demonstrated its falsity and absurdity...

"Since "the proper study of mankind is man," all this interests us greatly. We are interested even in men's dreams—the visions which the dozing or drugged brain conjures up. The minds which conceive such ideas as those of the Baptist are drugged by prejudice and distrust...

political conditions. It would probably admit that the conditions surrounding and attending the occupancy of the throne have changed immensely in two hundred years, and that kings no longer can change the religious beliefs of their subjects...

Premier Asquith's proposal to amend the "Accession Oath" by eliminating the foul and disgraceful epithets in which our holy faith is held up to obloquy, continues to draw angry protests from Protestant societies. According to these, any attempt to change the oath would mean "a flagrant act of treacherous disloyalty..."

Our London Letter.

LONDON, May 12th, 1910.

It is scarcely creditable that when the mail went out last week, England, and especially London, was preparing whole heartedly for one of the most brilliant seasons she has ever known, without so much as a hint of the awful calamity which was to fall upon her within twenty-four hours...

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Catholic Transcript, referring to the May devotions states the Catholic idea tersely thus: "So readily does Catholic devotion go out to the Mother of God that no wordy appeal is necessary to bring the faithful to a realization of their privileges during this favored Month of May..."

Of all the silly twaddle served in and out of season by irrepressible wise-acres on the perennial theme of Woman Suffrage, the very limit, we think, has been reached by one Ellen Key, whom the reporter describes as an European authority on the subject...

But we may not dwell in silent reminiscence by the bier of our Royal Lord, for already the trumpet's blast proclaims the coming of the new King, who, since his proclamation, has been entrusted to our loyal devotion by the Queen Mother, she who finds a place in every heart, and whose womanly cry for the consolation of our prayers in her heavy sorrow, has brought the nation to its knees with her name upon its lips...

It was a Catholic voice, that of the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshall of England, which was the first to take up the loud shout "God save the King" which Garter King-at-Arms raised on the balcony of St. James Palace, and it was another Catholic, London's Lord Mayor, who opened the barrier of the historic City to receive the King's messenger who rode with the great tidings to Temple Bar...

But it is a sign we cannot afford to disregard, though the very terms are an implied insult to both King Edward and King George. When we turn for a moment to the more pressing side of our loss—what it will mean in the future, for the Empire, for the Nation and for the Church. We are faced at once with the immensity of the calamity. Brave sailor as he is, King George has now to negotiate political channels which will tax the skill of the most experienced navigator of the ship of State...

In the first deep moments of our grief it is difficult to gauge all the consequences involved in this sudden calamity. In the words of the old Highland coromach "to us comes no cheering" for our chief aim has indeed gone from us when our need was the sorest. We Catholics will ever the gladly remember that one of the last acts of the King's life was the visit he paid to Lourdes, where with deep reverence he watched the Blessed Sacrament procession of the Blessed Sacrament amongst the sick and dying...

They, however, try to console themselves in so much as they produced a 44 per cent cream. The conditions of the contest were as follows: Each machine was to separate 13 lbs. of milk at a temperature of 53 degrees Fahrenheit. The bowls were to be flushed out with the skim milk and the skimming device to be washed with same. The cream to test as near 31 per cent as possible. It doesn't require a highly intelligent person to see in this another defeat, in so much as the Laval was away on the required quality of cream. Nothing easier—we could publish other contests in which the Tubular proves its superiority over its opponents. For instance for the bucket bowl test (The Laval being one) those contests are out of frequent occurrence. Knowing what the result will be, our opponents very wisely avoid them. The Footwear that Gives comfort in warm weather

No shoes are as comfortable as those made of tan leather. But a tan shoe should be well made. An ungraceful or ugly line will spoil the looks of a colored shoe. Every care should be taken in selecting the right kind of tan leather. It should be uniform in color and thickness and the color should never vary.

Invictus Colored Shoes

are well made. Every line is handsome and artistic. Every piece of leather that goes into them is carefully selected and uniform in color and thickness. For hot weather the most comfortable shoes are Invictus tan oxfords. They keep your feet dry, cool and comfortable on the warmest summer days, and prevent them from perspiring. They never bind your ankles. And Invictus tan oxfords never sag at the sides.

Wedding of Capt. Stirling and Hon. Margaret Fraser.

CEREMONY AT ESKADALE CHURCH.

Great interest was taken in the marriage of Captain Archibald Stirling of Keir and the Honorable Margaret Fraser of Lovat, which was celebrated yesterday in the picturesque village of Eskdale, Strathglass. The bride is the fourth daughter of the late Lord Lovat and sister of the present chief; and the bridegroom is the second son of the late Sir William Stirling-Maxwell, Bart., Kt., and the late Lady Anna Maria Maxwell-Stirling, daughter of the late Earl of Leven. The occasion was one of hearty rejoicings in all parts of the Lovat estates, and in the wide district of the Aird, in which Miss Fraser, in common with other members of the Lovat family, are known and esteemed. No tenantry in the North are more attached to their laird than are those of the Lovat estate, and when occasion offers they demonstrate their loyalty with an enthusiasm which shows that the bonds of friendship between proprietor and tenant are as enduring and as firm as of old. The happy event was therefore celebrated in time-honored fashion, bonfires being set ablaze on many eminences in the extensive estates, and dancing taken part in by young and old round the blazing piles.

The change which happily took place in the untoward weather was welcomed by all, for the sun shone with a summer kindness on the proceedings, and the snow-capped hills looked as if they had decked themselves with ermine to do honour to the occasion.

The bride motored to the church, and on her way she had to pass through many beautiful floral arches. The first was in close vicinity to Beaufort Castle, and the next was near the Hughton Post-office, where a beautiful floral arch spanned the roadway. The arch was erected by the crofters, and in bold letters in Gaelic they wished the bride "Turas math," which, being freely translated, means a "Good journey." On the other side of the arch were the words "Wishing you long life and happiness." The next arch, at Eskdale, was surmounted with a Union Jack, and stage heads were suspended amongst the foliage. On one side were the words "Better lo'ed ye canna' be," and on the other side the wish, "God bless this happy union."

The entrance to the church grounds was one mass of bunting, and a floral arch spanned the gateway. Besides, on many farm-houses and cottages bunting was displayed, and on every hand there were manifestations of the good will and the good wishes of the people towards the bride and bridegroom. For the occasion the church was beautifully decorated with lilies and palms, and there was quite a profusion of lovely orchids sent from the gardens at Keir.

As the guests arrived at the church, Pipe-Major Simon Fraser, of the Lovat Scouts, played "the gathering of the clans," and as the bride arrived he struck up a "Highland wedding." A large contingent of Lovat Scouts, drawn from Nos. 2, 3, and 4 Troops of No. IV. Squadron, lined the aisle of the church, the bridegroom being Colonel of one of the regiments of Lovat Scouts. As the bride entered the church, on the arm of her brother, Lord Lovat, followed by the bridesmaids, the organist (Dom Gregory Ould) from Fort Augustus played the Lohengrin "Bridal March."

The bride was attired in a handsome satin Princess dress, covered with lovely old Brussels lace. Her veil was of Brussels lace, lent by the Dowager-Countess of Derby. She wore a pearl and diamond collar, the gift of Lord Lovat, and a diamond pendant given by the tenants on the Cawdor estate, belonging to Captain Stirling. She also wore a beautiful pearl bracelet presented by the crofters in the parishes of Kilmorack, Kirkhill, and Kiltarilly, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The officiating prelate was the Right Rev. Eneas Chisholm, Bishop of Aberdeen, who had come specially North for the occasion. He was assisted by Father Donald Chisholm, Eskdale, and Father MacQueen, Inverness. The canons who assisted the Bishop were Canon Cameron, Beaulieu; Canon Bisset, Nairn; and Canon Dowling, Doune. High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Dom Adrian Weld Blundell, brother of Lady Lovat. The deacon of the Mass was Father Chisholm, and the sub-deacon was Father MacQueen. The ceremonies were under the direction of Rev. Dom Columba, Fort Augustus Abbey. Besides the officiating clergy those present in the sanctuary were the Rev. Prior Willson, Fort Augustus, and Father Fraser, Dingwall. The Benedictine monks from Fort Augustus formed the choir, and the music of the Mass was entirely Gregorian, according to the method which has been authorized by the present Pope.

On the arrival of the Bishop he was received at the west door of the church by the Canons, after which he proceeded to the High Altar to vest for the marriage ceremony. The offices of acolyte and thurifer were discharged by the sons of the Hon. Bernard Maxwell. Prior to the ceremony, Bishop Chisholm delivered a short address, in which he said that he could not allow that occasion to pass by when they had so many friends and relatives around them to express in their joint name, their sincere congratulations and best wishes to the bride and bridegroom. They were taking upon themselves new duties and new obligations and new responsibilities. The Holy Father in Rome had sent his special blessing, and he (the Bishop) also gave them his blessing.

The bride and bridegroom then entered the sanctuary, the bride being led by her brother, Lord Lovat, who subsequently gave her away. Kneeling before the altar, the interrogations, according to the Roman ritual, were made in English, and were answered in a clear voice by the bride and bridegroom. The marriage ring was then blessed and placed on the finger of the bride by the bridegroom, and then followed the concluding prayer of the marriage rite. The Mass then commenced, and proceeded with all the stately dignity of the Catholic Church. The Mass was one prescribed in the Church Missal—Missæ pro sponsa et sponsa. The bride and bridegroom afterwards received the solemn Nuptial Benediction. At the conclusion of the Mass, before the blessing of the Bishop was imparted, the celebrant again turned towards the newly-married couple and imparted the blessing which is prescribed after the close of the marriage. At the close two verses of the National Anthem were sung. The music of the Mass was excellently rendered by the monks, with Dom Gregory Ould presiding at the organ. Dignity and picturesqueness were lent to the entire ceremony by the magnificent robes worn by the clergy and the beautiful decorations of the church.

The bridal party afterwards retired to the vestry, and later, as Captain Stirling and the Hon. Mrs. Stirling left the edifice, Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played on the organ. Outside the church Pipe-Major Fraser played "Lord Lovat's March." The happy pair then entered a carriage, and they were escorted by a contingent of Lovat Scouts, under the command of Captain Hugh Dewar, to Beaufort Castle.

After the marriage a large and distinguished party of guests, numbering over 200, sat down to the wedding breakfast, which was served in the dining-room of Beaufort Castle. After the repast there was general expressions of congratulations to Captain and the Hon. Mrs. Stirling. Shortly afterwards the young couple drove away in a motor car for Glendoe Lodge amidst a shower of rice and cheers from the large crowd which had gathered in the vicinity of the Castle.

The Hon. Mrs. Stirling's travelling dress was of blue satin Charnouse, trimmed with old lace, and a blue satin coat of the same colour. Stirling music was played in front of the Castle by Cameron Highlander pipers. As had been said, there was much rejoicings in the district. The schools in Beaulieu and district were closed, and places of business in Beaulieu were also closed during the day, many of the inhabitants taking part in the wedding rejoicings. Bunting was displayed on many buildings, and a large steamer in the harbour (discharging a cargo for Paterson, Son, & Co.) was gaily decorated with flags and bunting. Part of the Hon. Mrs. Stirling's trousseau was supplied by Messrs. Hepburn, the Highland Tweed Warehouse, Beaulieu.

Mr. Clark, head gardener, and Mr. Dallas, head carpenter, were responsible for the erection of arches and floral decorations at Beaufort. Photographs were taken of the bridal party by Mr. D. Whyte, Inverness.

Masonry and the Church.

In a letter to the London Tablet, Rev. Herman Gruber, S. J., calls attention to a matter of the highest importance for international Catholic interests. He says:

Since 1889, in consequence of a resolution taken at the International Masonic Congress on occasion of the centenary of the French Revolution, 1789, increased efforts have been made by the Grand Orient of France and its partisans in all countries to bring about a closer union of all the Masonic bodies and allied institutions and associations of the world in order to realize more efficaciously and more rapidly the purposes of Freemasonry according to the principles of the French Revolution. The chief of these purposes is the defeat of the Vatican, the eternal and irreconcilable enemy of Masonry inside and outside the Masonic lodges.

Several international congresses followed in Paris, 1900, Geneva, 1902, Brussels, 1904. The next congress was arranged for 1906 in Rome, but twice already adjourned, because this time at Rome, the center of Catholicity, it was absolutely intended that the congress should be a really universal one. It is now proposed for 1911.

The unitive efforts were then redoubled, and indeed the Grand Orient party succeeded to bring about the closer union of the eight German Grand Lodges with the Grand Lodge of France in 1906, which is but a disguised agent of the Grand Orient of Paris. And May 27, 1909, by five against three votes, the representatives of the eight Grand Lodges, in their annual assembly, even decreed the re-establishment of official friendly relations with the Grand Orient itself. The Grand Orient party exulted and cried victory. All seemed to be accomplished according to its desires.

In the meantime the Germania, June 9, November 12, 1909, February 5 and 19, March 1, 10 and 12, published incisive articles attacking the Prussian government, etc. The consequence was a strong reaction against the decree of May 27, 1909. Four of the most important German Grand Lodges declared themselves with the utmost energy against the establishment of the official relations with the Grand Orient, and three, comprising for themselves two-thirds of all the German Masons, even most severely condemned the decree itself. A session of German Masonry followed.

The event is of the greatest importance also for English-speaking Catholics. For it the closer union of the Grand Orient should be accomplished with the German Grand Lodges, also the union of Grand Orient with the English and American would follow, or at least partial and practically be realized. And this would be very dangerous for the generalization of the French Kulturkampf throughout the whole world. Think of the Ferrer agitation. I wonder that the foreign press has so little seized this aspect of the matter.
